One World Festival - A Global Celebration of Art, Music, and Culture

Join us at the One World Festival in the heart of Downtown Denver, an extraordinary international celebration of art, craft, and live music. Formerly known as the Mile High Global Bazaar, this event marks its 18th year with an exciting new name and refreshed vision, while continuing its tradition of bringing together artisans, exhibitors, and musicians from around the world for a vibrant multicultural experience set in front of historic Union Station. Guests explore an eclectic open air marketplace filled with handcrafted goods, original artwork, global cuisine, and live performances representing cultures from across the globe. Denver, home to more than two million people in the metropolitan area, reflects a rich diversity of backgrounds and traditions, making this festival a natural gathering place to celebrate creativity, connection, and community. One World Festival has become a beloved annual tradition for both locals and visitors.

Where:

The One World Festival takes place in Wynkoop Plaza at Union Station, a premier public gathering space just outside Denver's central transportation hub and surrounded by award winning restaurants, hotels, and retail. Located at 1701 Wynkoop Street in the heart of Downtown Denver, this highly visible plaza sits at the center of constant pedestrian movement and city activity. This exceptional setting attracts a tremendous flow of visitors, drawing more than 6,500 attendees per event day. Union Station is just one block from the 16th Street Mall, Denver's most significant public corridor
